6. METHODOLOGY

This evaluation was prepared by comparing the admission requirements, program length, credit load, curricular content, and grading standards of the program described at Section 4 against the corresponding requirements of accredited United States baccalaureate programs in the same field. Reference was made to this office's institutional file on the Indian technical education system, to the awarding institution's published curriculum and regulations for the 2012 admission cohort, and to comparative benchmark data maintained by this office. Credit conversion applied a 1.00 : 0.75 ratio of Indian institutional credits to United States semester credits for lecture-based courses, consistent with this office's standing practice for four-year Indian B.Tech. programs.

7. EVALUATION AND CONCLUSION

It is the conclusion of this office that Devika Sudharsanam Ranganathan has completed a course of study equivalent to a Bachelor of Science degree in Information Technology awarded by an accredited institution of higher education in the United States.

>

The concentration of the degree is in Information Technology, which is a specific academic specialty within the computing disciplines. The coursework itemized at Section 5 — in particular Data Structures; Design and Analysis of Algorithms; Database Management Systems; Advanced Database Systems; Data Mining and Warehousing; Distributed Systems; Probability and Statistics; and Big Data Analytics — is the coursework ordinarily required of United States graduates entering data engineering and data science occupations.
